B." of Rosine. For, really I had never thought to presume that I knew anything about what was best for the people; I only have my own ideas or views of persons and things that have been given freely for what they were worth. Then ought I not be clated with the possibility of occupying a different position in the minds of others?

It seems needless to try to demonstate to Mr. "W. B." the absurdity of his assertions, for it is evident he is enrate, and has no knowledge whatever of the facts and figures that go to make up the sum of the great and noble deeds points out the never-ending existence of the Democrat party. HARPER'S WEEKLY.

ILLUSTRATED. HABPER'S WEEKLY has never failed to justify its title as a "Journal of Civilization," and it has done so with a constant regard to enlarged possibilities of usefulness and a higher standard of artistic and literary excellence. It leaves untoucned no important phase of the world's progress, and presents a record, equally trustworthy and interesting, of the notable events, persons, and achievements of our time.

Special Supplements will she continued in 1891. They will be literary, scientific, historical, critical, topegraphical, or descriptive, as occasion may demand, and will continue to deserve the hearty commendation which has been bestowed on past issues by the press and the public. As a family journal, HARPER'S WEEKLY will, as heretofore, be edited with a strict regard for the qualities that make it a safe and welcome visitor to every home.

Fleare sean one three dones of your Grove's Tasteless Chill Tunic. I was pleased with the bet frame you had summer. The people were dailphed with it. Igave your Chill Tunic to some chilften who were pure and swarthy and semantard, having had chronic chills for months past, one of them for a year and within three works after beginning with the Chill Tunic they were hale and hearty, with red and rosy checks. It acted like a chery
